

MASTER OF DISPUTE RESOLUTION

GRADUATE DIPLOMA OF DISPUTE RESOLUTION
GRADUATE CERTIFICATE IN DISPUTE RESOLUTION

> What is CSU's Master of Dispute Resolution?

Charles Sturt University's (CSU's) Master of Dispute Resolution will assist you to develop the comprehensive skills and knowledge required to analyse, manage, mediate and resolve conflict in a wide variety of contexts.

This academically rigorous program provides a specialist postgraduate qualification in dispute resolution and mediation alongside additional business, management, legal or human resource studies. Throughout this course you will learn from conflict management and resolution specialists with extensive and current practical experience who bridge the gap between the theories taught in subjects and their application in the workplace.

Students may choose to exit the Masters program with either a Graduate Certificate in Dispute Resolution after completion of the four core subjects, or a Graduate Diploma of Dispute Resolution after the completion of eight specified subjects.

> Career opportunities

Career opportunities include arbitrator, manager, negotiator and dispute mediator professional to support a range of discipline areas including law, business, politics, international trade, industrial relations and human resources, health and education.

Professionals involved in areas such as human resource management, law, teaching, social work and support agencies within government, business and the not-for-profit sector all require a comprehensive understanding of conflict and the process of dispute resolution.

> Professional recognition

Resolution Institute (formed by the merger of LEADR and IAMA), a recognised mediator accreditation body, regards the four core subjects of the Master of Dispute Resolution as meeting the necessary educational requirements for graduates to apply to be accredited by Resolution Institute to the national standard.

Some reasons for studying the Master of Dispute Resolution at CSU:

Gain knowledge and understanding about the cause and effect of conflict and the process and techniques for dispute resolution in your workplace settings.

This course ensures graduates are work-ready and equipped with qualifications recognised nationally.

CSU offers flexible study options that allow you to work and study online to best suit your needs.

To someone considering study at CSU, I would highly recommend it. The course was available online, had great quality content and applied learning, and was relevant to my future career path. My most memorable experience was attending residential schools which were well supported and greatly helped to consolidate my knowledge of the course. The Graduate Certificate in Dispute Resolution has prepared me for a promotion, as dispute resolution is very attractive to most employers.
