

ADULT AND VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

> Why study CSU's Adult and Vocational Education programs?

Charles Sturt University's (CSU's) Adult and Vocational Education programs are delivered fully online and can be studied from anywhere in Australia, allowing you the flexibility to manage your study with professional and personal commitments. These courses provide you with a diverse range of employment opportunities, including working as a teacher at TAFE or a training facilitator in an organisation.

> Undergraduate

CSU's Adult and Vocational Education programs offer vocational qualifications to teach your discipline in an adult learning environment or in a particular vocational setting.

Associate Degree in Adult and Vocational Education

CSU's Associate Degree in Adult and Vocational Education is the ideal entry point if you are considering studying at university for the first time. If you are working in the TAFE sector and want to broaden your skills, this course will expand your professional knowledge in the field.

Bachelor of Adult and Vocational Education (with specialisations)

CSU's Bachelor of Adult and Vocational Education (with specialisations) offers you the opportunity to become a degree qualified teacher or trainer in an adult or vocational educational setting. This course will enhance your skills and knowledge, making you more employable in the increasingly competitive job market. This course is designed to meet your professional development needs and give you the opportunity to specialise in areas including:

- Language, Literacy and Numeracy
- Training Systems and Human Resources Management
- Vocational Education and Training

Some reasons for studying Adult and Vocational Education at CSU:

Delivered fully online, giving you flexibility to manage study with professional and personal commitments.

The Workplace Learning subjects let you apply your learning directly to your work.

Career opportunities include working with TAFE or Registered Training Organisations, becoming a teacher, trainer, lecturer or HR Manager with training responsibilities.

Studying as an online student has enabled me to grow personally and also foster many new links with industry and training institutions. I have become more confident as I was thrown into teaching within my first year of study and have had to participate in over 300 hours of practicum on top of my part time studies, which helped me enormously. The course has enhanced my existing skills to enable me to change my career path.
