University

Graduation

April-June 2024

Welcome

On behalf of the Charles Sturt University community, it is my pleasure to invite you to celebrate this momentous occasion.

Graduation is an important milestone that marks the completion of your current studies and the beginning of a new chapter in your lives.

Your paths may be varied as you go on to take first jobs, promotions, research, perhaps another degree... but you all share something special. You are now lifelong members of the Charles Sturt family.

As Australia's largest regional university, we are proud of the continuing contributions our graduates make to communities and the world around them. You too are ready to make your mark on this world.

I encourage you all to take forward the ethos of Charles Sturt as you embark on your future endeavours – and apply the wisdom of respectfully knowing how to live well in a world worth living in.

Dr Michele Allan
Chancellor

Our ethos

Yindyamarra winhanganha.

This is a Wiradjuri phrase meaning 'the wisdom of respectfully knowing how to live well in a world worth living in'. It's at the heart of everything we stand for here at Charles Sturt.

It ties us to the First Nations peoples whose land we are fortunate and proud to share, and to the diverse communities across Australia that we serve. It is also the driving force behind what we teach to, share with and learn from our students.

And it embodies the mission of our university, which is to develop and spread insight and knowledge in order to create a better future – through expanding educational opportunities, delivering exemplary career-focused courses and enabling original research. Because we believe in making a difference.

Yindyamarra winhanganha

“...the wisdom of respectfully knowing how to live well in a world worth living in.”

Our history

Our ethos, 'yindyamarra winhanganha', has been part of the Charles Sturt narrative since the very start. Our history dates back more than 125 years, to the establishment in 1895 of a vocational farm at Bathurst, designed to give rural people access to skills and education.

Over subsequent decades, agricultural and teaching centres were set up in Wagga Wagga and Bathurst, disseminating knowledge so individuals could improve their prospects and better serve their communities.

Charles Sturt officially became a university in 1989, merging the former Mitchell College of Advanced Education and the Riverina–Murray Institute of Higher Education, and incorporating educational facilities at Albury–Wodonga, Bathurst and Wagga Wagga.

Since then we have continued to grow, and now give students from across Australia and the world access to quality university education.

Today we have campuses in Albury–Wodonga, Bathurst, Dubbo, Orange, Port Macquarie and Wagga Wagga. We also have study locations in Canberra, Goulburn, Parramatta, Sydney and Wangaratta.

Our delivery of world-class online education is informed by more than 50 years of experience in distance learning. The majority of our degrees can now be studied online.

We have unique partnerships with a wide variety of organisations, including TAFE providers, the NSW Police Force, the Anglican Diocese of Canberra and Goulburn, the New South Wales Department of Primary Industries, Commercial Radio Australia, the Islamic Sciences & Research Academy of Australia, and universities in China and Sri Lanka.

We also have many partners around the world, enabling our students to undertake international study experiences, further expanding their horizons.

The man from whom the university takes its name – Charles Napier Sturt – was a British soldier who sailed to the colony of New South Wales in 1827 to pursue his passion for exploration.

Our values

At Charles Sturt, everything we do is guided by four key values.

Insightful
Inclusive
Impactful
Inspiring

The university mace

The Charles Sturt mace is the symbol of the university as an independent academy of scholars constituted under legal authority.

The mace is crafted from timbers indigenous to the locations of Charles Sturt campuses. It reflects the traditions and authority of the university, and symbolises its multiple geographies and responsibilities to the people of rural and regional Australia.

The university message stick

A gift from Dubbo Regional Council, this wooden message stick draws on elements of local indigenous culture to represent the entire Wiradjuri nation, whose borders encompass our campuses at Albury-Wodonga, Bathurst, Dubbo, Orange and Wagga Wagga.

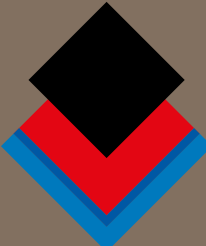

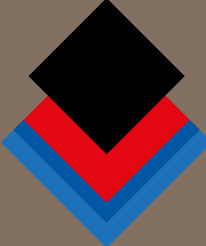

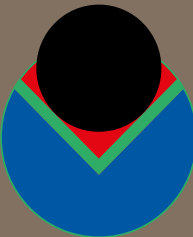

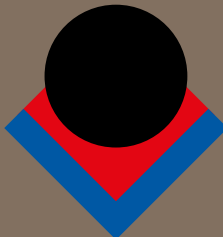

Young and old emu feathers, which hang from the mulga wood message stick, denote students of all ages. A possum painting represents the local Wilay Wiradjuri people and red ochre lines depict the Macquarie, Murrumbidgee and Murray Rivers on which the university's Albury-Wodonga, Bathurst, Dubbo and Wagga Wagga campuses are located.

Coat of Arms

This symbol bears the arms of the university at the centre. The helm sits above the arms showing a knight's helmet crowned with three golden stars atop which sits the crest – a lion holding three keys. The mantling is dressed in green and gold at either side of the helm and arms. 'For the Public Good', Charles Sturt's motto, is inscribed to the motto scroll at the base of the arms.

Tammy O'Connor

Bachelor of Nursing

Tammy O'Connor admits she is one of those rare and lucky people who knew early on how she wanted to make a real and lasting impact on this world.

"I studied a Bachelor of Nursing at Charles Sturt and I knew as soon as I started that I wanted to become a midwife. To me it seemed like such an awesome career.

"After graduating I worked as a registered nurse and quickly enrolled in the Graduate Diploma of Midwifery at Charles Sturt while working in the maternity unit as a student midwife. The uni gave me a great platform to learn in a safe environment, and provided a good stepping stone into my career. That's why I completed a Master of Midwifery through Charles Sturt. It opened the door to those higher level positions, including my current role as a clinical midwifery consultant for the Western NSW Local Health District.

"The beauty of nursing and midwifery is it can take you anywhere."

Tammy's 'anywhere' turned out to be parts of New South Wales which rarely received the health and educational support services they required. Realising women in remote areas needed access to antenatal and postnatal care, Tammy has been instrumental in implementing an outreach maternity program.

"I believe it's a basic human right for women to access a midwife during their pregnancy, regardless of their location. Working and living regionally provides me with the opportunity to work within the primary healthcare model of midwifery. It's what I love!"

Courtney Glazebrook

Bachelor of Education (Birth to Five Years)

Courtney Glazebrook is creating new beginnings by treasuring the past. Passionate about First Nations education, she is driven to make a difference in the lives of young Aboriginal children by giving them the best start to their educational journey. As the director of Towri Multifunctional Aboriginal Children's Service, each day that she opens the Towri doors, Courtney makes practical progress in her quest to cultivate a strong, connected and inclusive community.

"Towri encompasses health, education, community engagement and family support. Early childhood care has such great flow-on effects for families. While we're providing care for children we're also building platforms for parents, giving them the opportunity for employment and better health. We are building the capacity of whole communities. When children thrive so do communities.

"I have the opportunity to create tangible change. What we do, what we teach and what we advocate for directly impacts upon the community and everyone in it. I have learned, through my Charles Sturt studies and through my career, to question different regimes of truth.

"Aboriginal people are strong. We are connected. We are progressive. And at Towri we are creating new beginnings for those who come through. That really excites me."

Darren Denmead

Bachelor of Education
(Early Childhood and Primary)

Course CRICOS: 017967E

When he was little, Darren Denmead was captain of Bathurst West Public School. It took a little study, but it wasn't long before he was back as the school's principal.

Darren decided he wanted to make a difference in the lives of others, so he decided to study a Bachelor of Education (Early Childhood and Primary) with Charles Sturt – and after graduation, his motivation has stayed the same.

"I still love learning and teaching, and my enthusiasm for [my students] grows all the time.

"Let's be honest, who doesn't love the idea of making life a little bit more special for our kids and their families? No matter how trying the day, I go home knowing that I have helped children to believe in themselves and to love learning. Yes, the job is very demanding, but there is no better feeling than when you help kids to learn and to hope."

“I want people to know the unprecedented worth of my scholarship. It went beyond monetary value. It saved my mental health. I was able to concentrate on the important things and not stress one little bit about money.

“Uni is a tough gig. Juggling course requirements and placements, a social life, a couple of jobs and the everlasting battle with Centrelink (which can become more than a little tricky at times). But with the support of Charles Sturt donors and supporters, a huge amount of that burden has been lifted from our shoulders.

“I believe that our gratitude should not only be shown with an offer of thanks, but by the way we carry ourselves through our university career – and in our actual career that will follow. Through our scholarships we've been given the opportunity to make the absolute best of our university experience.”

Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander Students' Success in Higher Education: The Role of Relational Factors: Wiradyuri and English

Wiradyuri candidate Karen Pinder-Klemenchic uses an Indigenous research paradigm to relate her education journey to those from students who participated in a virtual Yarning Circle to inform the thesis. Relational factors do contribute to the level and extent to which students succeed in higher education while navigating the impacts of ongoing colonisation in deficit perspectives and racist pedagogies that confront them. The Wunga Stone analogy in this research makes a unique contribution to Indigenous knowledges in social work education.

Balayanhi Wiradyuri Garingundhi. We are sovereign my granddaughter. Embodying Wiradyuri women's sovereignty through Wiradyuri knowing, being and doing

Balayanhi Wiradyuri Garingundhi We are sovereign my granddaughter explores how the author embodies sovereignty as a Wiradyuri Wambuul woman. This thesis challenges Western framings of sovereignty and centres Wiradyuri cosmology, culture and the Wiradyuri methodology of wayamiilbuwawanha which uses stories and poems shared between grandmothers and granddaughters to examine embodiments of sovereignty. This research is a sovereign Wiradyuri ceremony that honours Wiradyuri buyaa and the sacred grandmother-granddaughter relationship.

Recognising, communicating and building on: Exploring strengths in mathematics in Kindergarten.

This exploratory ethnographic embedded case study investigated practices in recognising, communicating and building on strengths in mathematics in an Australian Kindergarten context. Children, supported by teachers, were recognised as mathematicians, capable learners and doers of mathematics, often demonstrating skills beyond syllabus expectations. These findings are significant and demonstrate the efficacy of a Strengths Approach intervention in maths education.

Staying in the Early Childhood Education and Care Profession: Struggle, Hope and Connection

Australia's retention of early childhood educators in the workforce has reached crisis levels. Recent retention research has identified wages and working conditions as contributing to the challenge. This study focused on investigating the factors affecting educators' retention in the Northern Territory, due to the limited retention research in this context. Relationships are a key retention support and building connection builds retention.

A Lutheran Pastoral-Social Theology in Critical Collaboration with Public Theology as a Basis for Engaging with the Australian Context

Australia is a liberal, secular, and plural Western society, which presents challenges and opportunities to social institutions such as the Lutheran Church of Australia (LCA). This thesis proposes that a 'Lutheran pastoral-social theology', a species of Christian social ethics, be brought into critical collaboration with public theology. On this basis, a church organization such as the LCA can more effectively engage with the Australian context.

Australian Baptist Women: 1882-1945: 'Writing with their lives'

This dissertation is the first scholarly study of the roles, contributions, and identities of Australian Baptist women during the period 1882-1945. It takes account both of women's involvement in Baptist organisations and their work in non-denominational organisations. The dissertation demonstrates the immense and hitherto unacknowledged contribution of Australian Baptist women to the Baptist denomination and to Australia's religious, social, and cultural life.

Rudolf Steiner's Impact on Contemporary Australian Art

European and Australian modernist artists have used Rudolf Steiner's ideas as a framework to support their investigation of the immaterial. They applied his ideas on colour and form and practiced his particular meditation techniques. This thesis pieces together the ways that Steiner's philosophy has informed Australian contemporary artists, revealing that they continue to use the same techniques Steiner imparted over a hundred years ago.

Developing a Biopsychosocial-Spiritual Framework to Prevent Moral Suffering (Moral Injury) in Trauma Exposed First Responder Communities

Emergency workers experience high rates of distress because of their work. While psychological, biological, and social issues are well attended to, spirituality is often overlooked. Moral injury (similar to PTSD) asserts spiritual distress is caused to emergency workers by the morally vexing nature of their work and workplace betrayals. The bio-psycho-social-spiritual framework that was developed is a holistic framework that prevents distress in emergency workers.

Indigenous-British Engagement and Reconciliation in Australia: A Girardian Analysis with Special Reference to the Awabakal People of the Newcastle Region, 1788-1842

This thesis examines the engagement and reconciliation between Indigenous and non-Indigenous people in Australia. It does this with a special focus on the Awabakal nation around what is now known as the Newcastle region. The thesis uses key aspects of the theory of the late French anthropologist René Girard on cultures and violence. The research generates new knowledge about peace-making and Indigenous self-realisation in partnership with the rest of Australia.

Connected Christ: Christology from the Perspectives of Multidimensional Theological Geometry

A new analytic theology method is developed termed theological geometry and is applied to examine traditional and challenging themes in Classical Christology. The new method is inspired by multidimensional geometry and involves transposing theological concepts into geometric representations. New techniques developing novel graphical and algebraic theological geometry provide an original and creative account of the coherence of Classical Christology.

Repentance in T. F. Torrance's Scientific Theology: A study of the inner logic of his theological method and its origins

This thesis argues that the aim of T. F. Torrance's scientific theology is to justify a call to repentance. By "scientific theology" Torrance means an approach to theology that can be defended as methodologically rigorous and apposite to its divine subject matter. An analysis of the content of his approach and its origins supports the conclusion that, for Torrance, repentance before God is the most scientific way to gain knowledge of God.

The Literacy Practices of Australian Secondary Students in One-to-One Device Classrooms

This case study explored student literacy practices on laptops during regular lessons. Screencasting was used to record laptop screens and promote normal work habits. Research found tasks were completed expediently, therefore, essential literacy skills such as reading comprehension, and the retrieval, synthesis, and critical evaluation of online information were compromised. These literacy skills are vital for functioning and prospering in contemporary society.

The E-Commerce Revolution and Cross-Border Goods Clearance: Time for Fundamental Change?

The recent rapid growth of e-commerce-based retailing has resulted in an exponential increase in low-value imports shipped via parcel. The thesis finds that Customs' use of outmoded clearance procedures to manage such imports impedes their ability to detect illicit goods and non-compliant activity. It explores options for improvements to clearance procedures to mitigate the identified risks while exploring impacts such solutions may generate if implemented.

Deep Learning Inspired Feature Engineering Approach for Improving EMG Pattern Recognition in Clinical Applications

This thesis introduces novel methodologies to enhance the performance of electromyogram EMG pattern classification by proposing innovative pattern recognition (PR) system suitable for real-time and clinical applications. Given the substantial impact of the extracted features quality on the overall PR systems, a variety of unique, resilient, hybrid and creative approaches have also been established to enhance the performance.

Trauma-Informed Care Practices: Systematic Literature Review, Pilot Study Re-analyses, TIC Taxonomy, and Belief Scale Development and Validation

Trauma-informed care aims to understand the traumatic histories of children placed in the care of the state and provide an environment that focuses on recovery and healing. Research shows favourable TIC beliefs are associated with improved outcomes for young people, carers, and agencies. The current study developed a scale to measure attitudes to trauma-informed care. It will be used to identify training requirement and improve outcomes for children in care.

Future Generation Wireless Channel Characterisation using Machine Learning Techniques

5G technologies have already become a crucial part of modern wireless networks and the research has begun on beyond 5G technologies. For wireless networks, the data transmission medium (wireless channel) is an important component. This thesis investigates new ways of using Federated Learning to model wireless channel for 5G and beyond technologies. Our proposed method preserves users' privacy and shows improvement in the overall system performance.

The Analysis of Non-profit Organisation in Terrorism Financing in Indonesia

The thesis investigates non-profit organisations' role in financing terrorist activities in Indonesia. It was shown that the most susceptible to being exploited by terrorist organisations are non-profit organisations that are not registered. According to the study's findings, the "self-regulated organisation" model should be implemented in unregistered non-profit organisations to protect them from internal and external dangers.

Factors Affecting Autologous Conditioned Serum Concentration in the Horse

Autologous conditioned serum (ACS) when administered into joints exerts a dose dependent cytokine mediated anti-inflammatory effect. This thesis provides contributions to the understanding of ways to influence cytokine concentrations within an ACS product in the pre- and post-collection periods, including container type, storage conditions, exercise, and acupuncture. These findings have important implications for the future use and storage of ACS.

Development of a point-of-care diagnostic tool for the early detection of bovine respiratory disease associated agents in feedlot cattle

This thesis investigated an in-field molecular diagnostic technology to provide a rapid identification of bovine respiratory disease (BRD) agents in feedlot cattle. The technology developed was effective for determining prevalence and load of microbiological agents in the bovine upper respiratory tract. The findings identified a threshold for risk of BRD by pathogen prevalence and load, outcomes with direct translation to the Australian feedlot sector.

Improving Sustainable Groundwater Management: A case study of managed aquifer recharge in Punjab Pakistan

This research contributes to sustainable groundwater management in Pakistan. Examining an existing Managed Aquifer Recharge (MAR) project in Punjab using groundwater modelling, water quality assessment, policy review and interviews with 31 Pakistani water experts, a multi-disciplinary assessment index was developed. The potential for MAR to contribute to groundwater management was confirmed, however more holistic and inclusive institutional arrangements are needed.

A song of smoke and seeds: post-fire seedling emergence in grasslands and grassy woodlands of south-eastern Australia

This thesis tested the hypothesis that fire does not increase seedling emergence in critically endangered grasslands and grassy woodlands of south-eastern Australia. It found that fire, via smoke and heat, increases germination and emergence of many grassland and grassy woodland species. The results represent a significant shift in how we think about the role of fire in grasslands and grassy woodlands, and further highlights the importance of fire for conserving, restoring, and managing these critically endangered ecosystems into the future.

Polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbon contamination in soils and sediments: Sustainable approaches for extraction and remediation

Polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons (PAHs) are toxic environmental pollutants. Efficient extraction of PAHs in soils and sediments using a eucalyptus oil-assisted extraction technique was reported. Sophorolipid and eucalyptus saponin biosurfactants were effective and greener approaches to bioremediation of PAH-contaminated soils and showed no observable impact on their soil fertility, allowing the reestablishment of native vegetation after the bioremediation process.

The Link Between Cell Vitality and Potassium in Grape Berries

Maintenance of grape cell vitality is required for development of fruit derived flavour and maturity for wine production. This research investigated the associations of berry potassium flux with gene expression, maintenance of cell membrane voltages and physiological parameters leading to cell death. The results provide new insights to the interactions of grape potassium concentrations and berry energy regulation during ripening.
