Prof Scott Cowdell

Scott Cowdell is a theologian and writer, based at Charles Sturt University in Canberra since 2007. He has published 12 books, including a theological trilogy on René Girard. This year, after 36 years of Anglican ministry in parishes, theological colleges and universities, he was received into the Catholic Church where formal approval is being sought from Rome for him to advance toward ordination.

Instead of a software package providing Christians with their private spiritual resources, the Church for Scott Cowdell is God’s “nontribal tribe” in the thick of an increasingly tribalistic world, held close by Jesus through the gospel and the Eucharist.

Theologically sharp, culturally savvy, engaged with current events and grounded in the Eucharist, these lectionary-based homilies celebrate the joy of the Gospel through the occasions that structure the life of liturgical churches.
