Acknowledgement of Country

We respectfully acknowledge the traditional owners and custodians of the lands on which we live and work together. Charles Sturt University and its staff pay respect to Elders within First Nations communities and acknowledge the continuity of cultures, languages, leadership and knowledge systems. We acknowledge First Nations peoples' continuous connection to Country, recognising the unique, diverse identities and cultures of peoples in our communities, regions and nation. As such, we value the collaboration to strongly position First Nations peoples in our university, through languages, leadership, cultures, knowledges, research and ceremonies.

Yindyamarra winhanganha

is a Wiradjuri phrase meaning

'the wisdom of respectfully knowing how to live well in a world worth living in'.

It's at the heart of everything we stand for at Charles Sturt.

Please be advised that videotaping, filming (including audio) or still photographs will be taken during graduation ceremonies for use in advertising, media publicity, publications, web displays or any other Charles Sturt University purpose. By entering this event, you consent to Charles Sturt University videotaping, filming (including audio) or photographing you and using your image and likeness. If you have any queries or do not wish us to use your image and likeness, please contact brand@csu.edu.au.

Congratulations on your huge achievement!

You now stand on the threshold of a brand new chapter, and today, we celebrate all the hard work that brought you here.

The late-night study sessions. The assignments (whether you submitted them early or just in the nick of time!).

Your persistence and dedication. It all made a difference in helping you reach your goals.

We have no doubt that you'll make a positive mark on your chosen field and we wish you all the best in your endeavours.

Chancellor's welcome

On behalf of Charles Sturt University, it is my pleasure to congratulate you on your momentous achievement.

Graduation is an important milestone, one which marks the completion of your current studies and heralds the start of a new and exciting chapter in your lives.

From today, there are many paths you can walk: first jobs, career changes, promotions, research and further studies. All of these options – and many others – are now available to you.

As Australia's leading regional university, Charles Sturt is proud of the contributions made by our graduates. You too are equipped to leave your mark on the world.

From today, you join the Charles Sturt community as members of our alumni. You have the opportunity to maintain and grow the professional and friendship networks that you have forged, as well as gaining access to member benefits enjoyed by thousands of our alumni around the world.

We wish you the best of luck.

Dr Michele Allan
Chancellor

Vice-Chancellor's message

Congratulations on the successful completion of your studies. You can – and should – take immense pride in your achievement.

With the knowledge, experience and connections you have gained during your time at Charles Sturt, you are uniquely placed to go out into the world and forge careers that make a real difference.

The Wiradjuri phrase 'yindyamarra winhanganha' means the wisdom of respectfully knowing how to live well in a world worth living in. This phrase, Charles Sturt University's ethos, now also represents an opportunity for you to seize: to spread the knowledge you have earned to make the world a better place.

Learning is the product of an active collaboration between university students and staff. In acknowledging your contribution to the intellectual life of the university, I also recognise the commitment of our staff in supporting our students to achieve the best in their studies.

Congratulations once again and best wishes for the future.

Professor Renée Leon PSM
Vice-Chancellor and President
Charles Sturt University

Our history

Our ethos, 'yindyamarra winhanganha' has been at the heart of Charles Sturt's story since day one. With a history that stretches back more than 125 years, we began as a humble vocational farm at Bathurst, dedicated to empowering rural people with essential skills and education.

Fast forward through the decades and we established agricultural and teaching centres in Wagga Wagga and Bathurst, sharing knowledge so people could uplift their futures and communities.

In 1989, Charles Sturt made its grand debut as a university, named after the British soldier Charles Napier Sturt, who sailed to New South Wales in 1827 to pursue his passion for exploration.

Since then, we've been on an exciting growth journey, opening doors to quality university education for students in regional Australia, with campuses in Albury-Wodonga, Bathurst, Dubbo, Orange, Port Macquarie and Wagga Wagga. But we didn't stop there! We also have study hubs located in Canberra, Goulburn, Parramatta, Melbourne, Sydney and Wangaratta, and our online courses reach people across the globe.

Speaking of online education, Charles Sturt is Australia's largest online university with more than 50 years' experience delivering online learning. The majority of our degrees can be studied online, creating more opportunities and flexibility for our students. We provide social spaces for connection and personalised support, so everyone has a chance to shine – whether on campus or online.

With a global network of partners, our students embark on international study adventures and hands-on learning, broadening their horizons and adding new skills to their repertoires. Our focus on providing practical learning means our graduates step into their careers with a wealth of knowledge and practical experience. They're ready to make their mark and create a world worth living in – which is everything we could hope for.

Charles Napier Sturt

The man from whom the university takes its name – Charles Napier Sturt – was a British soldier who sailed to the colony of New South Wales in 1827 to pursue his passion for exploration.

What to expect

The day you've been waiting for has finally arrived. After all your efforts, time and dedication, you're ready to graduate!

How does it work?

The Academic Senate recommends students to be admitted to degrees. These soon-to-be grads (also known as graduands) have successfully completed their coursework and passed the required exams. The University Council formally admits the graduands, approving conferral of award as graduates.

About the ceremony

University medals

Undergraduate University Medal

Awarded to our graduates from a bachelor's degree, in which at least 64 points of study in the course were completed at this university and whose GPA was 6.75 or higher.

Postgraduate University Medal

Awarded to our graduates from a coursework master's degree, in which at least 64 points of study in the course were completed at this university and whose GPA was 6.75 or higher.

Higher Degree by Research University Medal

Awarded to one doctoral and one master's by research graduate per faculty. At least two examiners must indicate that the graduate's thesis is at a level consistent with the award of a university medal.

Bachelor Honours University Medal

Awarded to one honours graduate per faculty, who has completed at least 64 points of study in the course at the university, and who has achieved Class 1 as an overall grade for the honours course. At least one examiner must indicate that the student's thesis or dissertation is at a level consistent with the award of a university medal.

Charles Sturt Medal

Awarded to one graduate annually who has both an outstanding academic achievement (including a GPA of 6.75 or higher), and has demonstrated a significant contribution to the public good consistent with the university's motto 'for the public good'.

You can spot the university mace and message stick

The university mace

The Charles Sturt mace is the symbol of the university as an independent academy of scholars constituted under legal authority.

The mace is crafted from timbers indigenous to the locations of Charles Sturt campuses. It reflects the traditions and authority of the university, and symbolises its multiple geographies and responsibilities to the people of rural and regional Australia.

The university message stick

A gift from Dubbo Regional Council, this wooden message stick draws on elements of local indigenous culture to represent the Wiradjuri nation, whose borders encompass our campuses at Albury-Wodonga, Bathurst, Dubbo, Orange and Wagga Wagga.

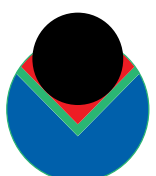

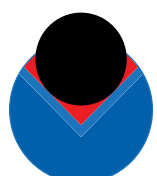

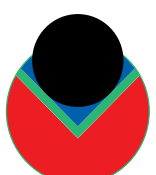

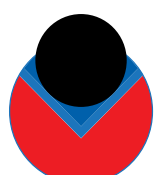

Young and old emu feathers, which hang from the mulga wood message stick, denote students of all ages. A possum painting represents the local Wilay Wiradjuri people and red ochre lines depict the Macquarie, Murrumbidgee and Murray Rivers on which the university's Albury-Wodonga, Bathurst, Dubbo and Wagga Wagga campuses are located.

Charles Sturt has a coat of arms

This symbol bears the arms of the university at the centre. The helm sits above the arms showing a knight's helmet crowned with three golden stars atop which sits the crest – a lion holding three keys. The mantling is dressed in green and gold at either side of the helm and arms. 'For the public good', Charles Sturt's motto, is inscribed to the motto scroll at the base of the arms.

Alumni Give

You can make a difference

Ways to give

As one of our Charles Sturt alumni, you're uniquely placed to help those graduating after you. Our alumni give back in all sorts of ways – including volunteering their time to speak at graduations or university events, mentoring current students, actively engaging on our social channels, hosting and being involved in alumni events, and even starting alumni associations.

Donating

Alumni can also pay it forward by donating to the Charles Sturt University Foundation Trust. Your generous support to a student is far-reaching and is sometimes the only thing ensuring that they're able to complete their degree. As a graduate, you would be aware of the impact even the smallest support can make to your journey. There is no greater gift than education.

Andrea Goodison

Master of Education
(Teacher Librarianship)

“The quality of the lecturers and the practical elements of the units are definite highlights. There's such a high level of professional growth and networking opportunities. So many of the lecturers are working in libraries and it was powerful to benefit from their knowledge and gain insights into how their libraries operate.”

Thiery Willa

Master of Ethics and Legal Studies

Thiery studied philosophy in Scotland at Edinburgh University and discovered she was particularly interested in ethics. When she arrived in Australia, she wanted to study both ethics and law.

“Charles Sturt offered a unique combination of legal and ethics topics that matched what I was looking for, so I didn't apply anywhere else. Plus, it was good to be able to study online, meaning I didn't have to move house!”

Thiery particularly enjoyed the flexibility of studying with Charles Sturt. She even listened to lectures on her morning run or while cooking. By studying when it was convenient for her, she was able to keep up with her favourite activities, such as going for a surf on the weekend with her friends. We love when our students have fun while taking their career to the next level!

“I did this course to advance my career, and I'm so glad I did. I have moved on to a PhD in the same field and now work as a casual lecturer with Charles Sturt.”

Holly Boyland

Bachelor of Social Work

Holly initially applied to study law because she wanted to become a country solicitor. However, she changed her mind and decided to study social work instead.

“Looking back now I’m glad I chose social work because it’s so rewarding. I chose the Bachelor of Social Work at Charles Sturt because a lot of social workers in my community studied there and highly recommended it.”

Holly found her lecturers to be helpful and inspiring.

“Many lecturers are social workers who have published numerous research articles and podcasts about the modern disadvantages people in society are facing today. I wanted to do what they’re doing. They took their time to get to know us and reflected on our assessments and how we could incorporate what we learned into our practice. They were truly inspirational to those of us who wanted to make a difference in our community.”

While she was studying, Holly worked in a non-profit organisation in her community, gaining more experience working with children and families. She found it helpful in building her social work professional identity, and we’re so excited to see Holly implementing everything she learned into her career.

“I’m working as a caseworker in a non-profit organisation working with children and families. My career goal is to help people in some way and give back to my community.”

Social Work and the Far-Right - Why it matters to the Safety of Women: Perspectives from Australia and the United States of America.

This research explores the specific threats posed by far-right ideologies to women's equality, autonomy, and safety. Interviews were conducted with experienced social workers, academics, and researchers. Findings show how extremist ideologies operate through complex systems to constrain women's lives and opportunities. The research also delivers a framework for practice aligned with the profession's multidimensional skillset to enhance social work in this field.

George Rafael

Workplace Bullying: A Social Work Perspective

Using an autoethnographic approach, this thesis reveals the severe psychosocial impacts on victims and families, exposing systemic failures and gaps in organisational responses. It introduces a reflective experience and developmental model to help practitioners address hidden trauma and empower employees. The analysis informs social work practice and drives systemic, legislative, and workplace reforms for justice and healing.

Transmitting al-Shatibi: Towards a Reception History of the Muwafaqat and Maqasid al-Shari'a in the Maliki School

Challenging prevailing understanding, David discovered two manuscript copies of Shatibi's important work in Timbuktu, Mali, and numerous instances it was directly quoted and used as evidence during the 500 year gap between his death in 1388 and the revival of his thought around 1900. David showed how Shatibi's output was incorporated within other works and was commented upon across North Africa and Mauritania, both prior and parallel to modern use of his ideas.

The Learned Hand: What can artists teach us about making aesthetics central to educational practice?

This research addresses the absence of aesthetics in Australian education by examining what artists can teach us about its integration. Five Australian artists were studied using portraiture methods. Findings propose the "learned hand" as a pedagogical model that centres aesthetics in constructivist teaching. The work supports a shift from neoliberal norms toward inquiry-based practices that foster expression, agency, and socially just, meaningful learning.

Seeking Matrology and the Missing Women: Recovering Foundational Church Mothers of Early Christianity

This project recovered foundational Christian women to be considered Church Mothers & leaders, akin to Church Fathers. It evidenced that many women from antiquity met strict criteria. Significantly, it amended prior erasures and bias and proposed a new field of study on Church Mothers to be instituted as a cognate domain to Church Fathers in theological studies.

Jacqueline Lee McNamara

A Feminist Approach for Exploring and Transforming the Professional Identity of Women Social Workers in Australia

This thesis explored ten Australian women social workers' professional identity through online focus groups using a feminist decolonial perspective. Participants' identity was impacted by systemic gender-based oppression, but they also actively resisted this through three practical, co-developed transformative processes: collective organising, consciousness-raising, and acts of resistance. Together, these three processes can foster authentic professional identity.

William Henry John Overton

Development, Decline, and Diaspora: The Open Brethren in Tasmania, 1945-2000

Tasmanian Open (Christian) Brethren grew during the 1960s despite wider church decline. Membership grew by nearly a third between the 1966 and 1976 censuses. But as Australian society shifted from a unified, rational religious framework to a more diverse and experimental culture, membership declined. The dissertation analyses the post-war growth and decline of this group of evangelical Christians.

Developing scientific literacy among children in early years (4-5 years) in Australia

This PhD explores children's scientific literacy development process in the early years through play in the Australian context. The findings indicated that educators' intentionality is a key factor and that they need to focus on planning, play-based activities, and pedagogical reflection through a series of interconnected science-play. Children's engagement in scientific literacy in the early years could support their development of higher psychological functions.

Toitū Te Mana: A Mediation on Mana Motuhake, The White Possessive, Settler Colonialism, Te Tiriti o Waitangi and The Collective Future of Aotearoa New Zealand

This thesis examines mana motuhake (Indigenous sovereignty) and questions Aotearoa New Zealand's bicultural orthodoxy around the Treaties of Waitangi. Interdisciplinary in nature, it argues that government power continues settler/invasor colonial control, especially over non-signatory hapū and iwi. It calls for a collective future where Māori authority is recognised, and a new constitutional culture is adopted based on Māori values.

Adult Children of Australian Vietnam Veterans: A Silent Generation with a Story to Tell

Exploring the wellbeing of 94 adult children of Australian male Vietnam veterans, this mixed-methods study found overwhelming evidence linking the veterans' Vietnam War service to the children's poorer physical and psychosocial health, compared to the general population. Six recommendations arose, recognising Defence and veterans' families as integral to the Defence ecosystem, providing strategies to inform action plans and outcomes from the 2024 Royal Commission.

Faculty of Business, Justice and Behavioural Sciences graduates

Professor Lewis Bizo
Executive Dean

Congratulations on reaching this significant milestone in your academic journey! Your hard work, dedication and perseverance have brought you to this moment and you should be immensely proud to be graduating today.

As you step into the next chapter of your lives, remember that the skills and knowledge you've gained here at Charles Sturt University will serve you well in all your future endeavours. Embrace the challenges and opportunities that come your way with confidence and curiosity.

Doctor of Information Technology

Jennifer Biney

Adoption, Security Implications, and Policy Design of Bring Your Own Device in Privately Owned Internet Service Providers and Higher Education Institutions in Ghana: An Integrated UTAUT-TOE Framework Approach.

This qualitative study examined the adoption of Bring Your Own Device (BYOD) and its security implications among Internet Service Providers and Higher Education Institutions in Ghana. The study revealed that weak policies, low awareness, and limited resources introduced risks like malware attacks, data breaches and unauthorised access and that strong policies, training and security tools e.g. Mobile Device Management are essential for a secure implementation of BYOD.

Doctor of Public Safety

Samantha Katrina Jones

The Fusion of Intelligence: Terrorist Organisation Lifecycle Profiling and Disbandment

This thesis aimed to better understand terrorist organisational lifecycles through a fusion of intelligence. In doing so, it exposed under-recognised aspects of growth, to develop a lifecycle profile with pre-formation, formation, evolution, escalation, disintegration, dark, and disbandment stages. This multidimensional profile led to a Triadic Theory of Terrorism, which identifies essential factors necessary for a terrorist organisations lethality and success.

Emma Kerin

Improving financial crime control, disruption, and prevention capabilities in the Australian Commonwealth public regulatory sector by examining intraorganisational intelligence structures

The thesis explores intelligence capability effectiveness within the Australian regulatory sector in preventing and disrupting financial crime. Key factors for effectiveness identified in the research were leadership, human resources, feedback mechanisms and governance. The thesis uniquely integrates organisational theory to intelligence practice in the hitherto largely unexplored area of regulatory intelligence practice in Australia and internationally.

Doctor of Philosophy

With Higher Degree by Research University Medal – Dristi Datta

Learning-Based Soil Property Estimation using Remote Sensing Data Focusing on Spectral Complexity, Noise and Vegetation Interference

This study developed an AI-based system using remote sensing data to estimate soil quality across vast landscapes. The research introduced novel modelling techniques to correct spectral interference irrespective of land types for enhancing soil-carbon estimation accuracy. These advancements enable large-scale soil health assessment for sustainable agriculture and land management.

Samrah Arif

Wireless Channel Characterisation for Low Power IOT Devices using Machine Learning Techniques

This thesis investigates wireless channel estimation accuracy for low-power Internet of Things networks for indoor environments. Using real-time data, it develops traditional and machine learning models to accurately estimate the wireless channel. The thesis's main contributions are the development of estimation models and their performance analysis. It is shown that the proposed models estimate the wireless channels very close to the actual wireless channels.

Mahir Gamal Sabir Habib

A Framework for Sharing Livestock Event Information

Mahir's PhD delivers a practical framework for sharing livestock event data (e.g., births, weights, treatments) between data producers (e.g., farmers, processors, service providers) and data consumers (e.g., investors, researchers, regulators). Using standardised definitions and real-time messaging keeps data consistent and reusable, enabling faster, more accurate decisions across the red-meat supply chain, improving traceability, biosecurity and productivity.

Md Ershadul Haque

Efficient image representation and compression for quantum computing by exploiting correlations within qubits and connections

This thesis proposes efficient quantum circuits for quantum image representation and compression. By exploiting patterns in pixel values and quantum state positions, it introduces novel techniques that reduce the required number of qubits and circuit connections. These improvements enhance quantum image storage and processing efficiency, supporting future handling of large, high-resolution images in applications such as security, healthcare, and communications.

Jamil Ispahany

Novel ransomware detection techniques using incremental learning

This research creates adaptive AI methods that continuously learn to detect ransomware using low-level system data (Sysmon), even when attackers try to evade detection. It presents two key models: iCNN-LSTM+, a deep learning model with 99.64% F2-score accuracy, and SILRAD, a fast, near real-time detector with 94.65% F2-score. Supported by the publicly released RADAR dataset, this work strengthens self-learning cyber defenses against evolving ransomware threats.

Mehedi Tajrian

Analysing Misinformation Using Data Science Techniques: Application to Child Development Issues

This doctoral thesis investigated an important research topic and applied data science techniques to analyse child development information. Using the state-of-the-art text-mining and machine learning algorithms, the thesis developed sophisticated models that accurately distinguished myths from facts with over 98% accuracy, showing how technology can enhance access to trustworthy information from the data-centric world and support evidence-based parenting decisions.

Gnanakumar Thedchanamoorthy

Privacy-Preserving Data Collection for Statistical Aggregation

This research improves how organisations collect survey data securely. Existing privacy methods either risk leaks or make data too noisy to be useful. The proposed User-Driven Local Differential Privacy system lets survey-participants choose their own privacy level while keeping aggregated results accurate for the data collectors, achieving a better balance between personal privacy and reliable insights from the data collection.

Faculty of Science and Health graduates

Professor Megan Smith
Executive Dean

Congratulations on graduating from the Faculty of Science and Health today. As you embark on your next journey, remember your potential to make significant contributions.

We are proud of you and wish you a bright, successful future.

Doctor of Veterinary Studies

Alice Janette Birkhead

Computed tomographic investigation of Linguatula serrata (tongue worm) and imaging review of canine parasites

This work used computed tomography (CT) to investigate Linguatula serrata (tongue worm) in wild dogs in Australia. The tongue worm is a zoonotic parasite found throughout the world in domestic and wild animals. CT was used to describe intranasal tongue worms within dogs' nasal passages. The anatomy of tongue worm was depicted using micro-CT. A general review of the radiographic and CT features of parasitic diseases in dogs is also presented.

The impact of light on oxidative and reductive aging of wine

Wines exposed to light can develop detrimental sensory characters, which can even include the odour of a wet dog. The research of Ms Isara Vongluanngam focused on two key photoactive agents in white wine, and the extent to which their detrimental impacts can be influenced by Cu ions, different light sources, wine bottle colour and alcohol concentrations. The findings from her thesis offer critical approaches to mitigate the light-induced spoilage of wine.

Inam Ahmed

The spatial scale of analysis affects the results of in-stream two-dimensional hydraulic models

Hydraulic models simulate how different river flows affect the habitat of aquatic plants and animals. This thesis examined how study reach length and model cell size influence hydraulic model outputs. Longer study reaches represented depth and velocity more reliably than shorter reaches. Models using 2m² cell size represented rivers better than those with 1m² or 5m² cell size. These findings will help others design better hydraulic models to inform river management.

Josephine Ohenewa Bampoe

Development of a culturally responsive Ghanaian English speech and language assessment tool

This PhD developed the first formal speech and language assessment for Ghanaian English-speaking children. The B-GESLA was created with Ghanaian speech-language pathologists to improve accurate diagnosis and intervention for multilingual children with speech and language disorders in Ghana. It also provides an evidence-based roadmap for developing culturally responsive tools in under-resourced contexts.

Prospects for using dual placement P fertiliser in south-eastern Australia: Understanding crop specific responses with a focus on roots

Due to the immobile nature of phosphorus in soils, consideration must be given to the placement of phosphorus fertiliser for crops. In northern NSW there has been increased phosphorus efficiency when placing phosphorus at depth (20cm). This study focused on the root system, as plant species have different abilities to modify their root system to exploit deep phosphorus bands. It was determined that deep phosphorus does not increase efficiency in southern NSW.

Aduba Collins

Characterisation and Bioavailability of Sorghum Polyphenols and its impact on Cancer Development Pathways

This thesis explores the types of polyphenols in sorghum, a cereal grain, how they are absorbed (bioavailability), and how they influence cancer-related pathways. The research identified key pigmented sorghum polyphenols with strong antioxidant and anti-cancer properties. Findings show these compounds may inhibit cancer cell growth by modulating key signalling mechanisms. This highlights sorghum's potential in cancer prevention and supports its use in functional foods.

Tridip Das

From transmission to prevention: Insights into Beak and feather disease virus (Circovirus parrot) and a novel spray-dried vaccine development

Tridip's thesis explores how beak and feather disease virus spreads among birds in natural ecosystems and how it can be prevented using innovative vaccine. It shows that predator-prey relationships can play a crucial role in expanding virus's host niche and that insects can act as mechanical vector. This research also develops a new vaccine formulation with promising results in experimental trials, offering a practical tool to help protect endangered parrots.

Ann-Maree Catherine Fardell Hartley

The use of social Media Platforms to Communicate Suicidality by Young People and the Implications in Rural and Remote New South Wales.

Tasmanian Open (Christian) Brethren grew during the 1960s despite wider church decline. Membership grew by nearly a third between the 1966 and 1976 censuses. But as Australian society shifted from a unified, rational religious framework to a more diverse and experimental culture, membership declined. The dissertation analyses the post-war growth and decline of this group of evangelical Christians

Colette Geier

Cultivating Knowledge: Investigating Ethical Research Practice and the Impact of environment on the phytochemistry of Eremophila

This thesis examines collaborative Natural Products Research with the Wiradyuri community, focusing on Eremophila spp. It investigates how soil, seasonality and post-harvest treatment influence phytochemistry, while exploring ethical research practice. The work documents issues that affected research continuity, stakeholder trust and researcher wellbeing, arguing that sustainable, community-engaged research needs structurally competent governance and ethical intent

Sulaiman Lansana Mandoh

The psychosocial impact of COVID-19 pandemic on Australian-based West Africans who survived the 2014-2016 Ebola epidemic: A descriptive cross-sectional study

This research investigated psychosocial sequelae of COVID-19 on Australian-based West Africans who survived Ebola-virus disease (EVD) epidemic. Participants reported that the EVD experiences enhanced compliance with COVID-19 prevention measures and were satisfied with Australian government support. The study advocates mitigating psychosocial complications using lived experiences of prior traumatic events on specific cohorts for responsive crisis management.

Maksi Lorraine Morris

Planting the seed of lifestyle change: A grounded theory

This new theory explains how 12 rural general practice nurses supported lifestyle risk reduction. Findings emphasise the centrality of Cultivating caring connections and the cyclical process of Planting the Seed which was observed to be Making a difference. A positive practice culture, access to adequate resources, plus sufficient knowledge and skills in behaviour change methods are needed to build nurses' capacity for Planting the Seed of Lifestyle Change.

Jonathan Paul Ramke

Exploring the Effectiveness of Ayres Sensory Integration Intervention for Children with Autism Spectrum Disorder: A Mixed Methods Study in an Australian Context.

Dr Ramke has evaluated the effectiveness of Ayres Sensory Integration for children with autism spectrum disorder. In a mixed methods study, evidence of efficacy of ASI remained inconsistent due to methodological variability, divergent adherence to fidelity measures, and heterogeneous assessments. Evaluating these findings against NHMRC guidelines, the study advocates for rigorous application of ASI fidelity measures and development of validated assessment tools.

Leia Rogers

How does hatchery environment influence survival behaviour of fish in stocking programs?

Millions of fish are released into the wild to support recreational and conservation objectives yet many of these fish die soon after release due to deficits in behaviour. In her PhD, Leia revealed behavioural development and parasite-mediated changes in behaviour of two key freshwater species in the Murray Darling Basin. The research provides valuable information to maximise the survival of stocked fish to enhance their recreational, social and environmental value.

Emmalie Paige Sanders

*Ecology and resource use of the rakali (Hydromys chrysogaster) in the Murrumbidgee River catchment area, southern New South Wales*

This thesis addresses key knowledge gaps within the ecology of the rakali (Australian water rat) and assesses the threat status of the species in relation to the global assemblage of freshwater mammals. It develops novel detection methods for species monitoring, confirms the prevalence of rakali predation on invasive fish via DNA diet analysis, and identifies habitat and hydrological factors critical for occupancy, guiding water refuge management and conservation

Vittorio John Travan

An examination of the lived experiences of Australian female athletes involved in performance enhancing drug testing

This project explored the performance enhancing drug education and testing of Australian elite and sub-elite level female athletes in Australian rules football, cricket and swimming. Using an intersectional lens, this research found that female athlete experiences with anti-doping education and testing were complex and contained a multitude of ethical concerns, with determinants such as sport played, age, years of experience being significant factors to consider.

Veronika Vicic

Understanding and overcoming barriers in the rearing and finishing of surplus dairy calves: Implications for the Australian dairy beef supply chain

By 2035, all surplus dairy calves in Australia must be reared for beef instead of early life slaughter. This research explored the barriers dairy farmers face, like high rearing costs, lack of markets, and low returns. It also tested novel feeding regimens to improve meat and eating quality of dairy bred steers. Findings support the need for improved industry guidelines, better pricing, and consumer acceptance to create a profitable and ethical dairy beef market.

Melissa Jayne Wales

A Study of Social Norms and Soil Management

Much agricultural soil is degrading. Science can support farmers change practices, but social norms- shared 'rules' on how to behave- influence use of knowledge. This research explored social norms related to soil management, focused on the rural community of Holbrook. It showed that norms of the traditional 'good farmer' are being questioned, that new soil norms are maintained by groups, partly through labelling, and that change agents should consider norms more.

Linda Ann Wirf

Beyond adoption: women's knowledges in agricultural practice change in Australia

Norms in Australia lead to women farmers' knowledges being frequently undervalued, constraining the transformation agriculture needs to address ecological declines. Linda's thesis suggests reframing the gender hierarchy in agriculture by recognising the unique values of both women's and men's knowledges and practices. The thesis presents a collaborative model, derived from grounded theory, for better inclusion of women farmers' knowledges and perspectives.

Jessica May Wyse

Characterisation of coumestans in lucerne and their effect on fertility in beef cattle

This thesis investigated effects of oestrogen-like compounds in lucerne and other pasture legumes on cattle fertility. Levels of phyto-oestrogens varied by plant type, location, and season, with high concentrations linked to reduced conception rates and embryo quality. The research provides practical grazing and breeding management strategies to reduce fertility issues, helping producers and veterinarians make informed decisions during critical breeding periods.
