

The Charles Sturt University APA Referencing Summary

Based on the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association (7th ed.)

This summary gives examples of the APA referencing style for a number of commonly used information sources. If the work you want to cite does not match any example, choose the group, category, and type that are most similar and adapt the format using the elements shown in the relevant template (APA, 2020, section 9.1). Otherwise, refer to the APA Publication Manual (7th ed.), in particular Chapter 10. Other resources to assist with your referencing can be found on the referencing page and through posting a question on the Academic Skills Advisor Forum. You could explore using the EndNote software, which you can download for free from the library website. EndNote helps you to cite your sources correctly and organise your research and notes. Go to the CSU library guide for Endnote.

The Reference List	In-text Citations	Page and Paragraph Numbers
(APA, 2020, sections 2.21, 9.43, 9.44, Chapter 10) See page 18 for an example reference list. A reference list is an alphabetically arranged list of sources used in a paper. It starts on a new page immediately after the last page of the paper. The list has the heading References (centred, bold, not in italics, and not underlined). Each item on your list has a hanging indent of 1 cm. (Highlight text + Ctrl T). See the examples on the following pages. No bullets or numbers. Double space all reference entries. The basic form of a reference list entry displays the following: author: Who is responsible for this work? Date: When was this work published? Title: What is this work called? Source: Where can I retrieve this work? Hint: begin your reference list as you start work on your assignment, adding items as you locate each source. This will save time and energy later. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> Names of authors appear in the order listed on the title page. An ampersand (&) joins the last two names in the series. When you have more than one source with the same author and date, put a lower-case letter to differentiate between them and use the corresponding letters for the in-text citation e.g. (Brown, 2018a) and (Brown, 2018b). When there are 21 or more authors, include the first 19 authors' names, insert an ellipsis (but no ampersand), and then add the final author's name (see p. 7). Format according to this table if you have missing source information. 	(APA, 2020, Chapter 8) In-text citations should correspond to the author-date information of that source in the reference list. Insert citations as you write. If you wait until later, you may forget the details. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> When a work has one or two authors, always cite each name every time the reference occurs in the text. When a work has more than two authors include only the surname of the first author followed by "et al." and the year of publication. Within a paragraph, when the author's name is outside the parentheses, you do not need to include the year in subsequent references so long as this does not lead to confusion. e.g. McLean (2004, p. 32) has shown that the effect of the drought on rural towns McLean also demonstrated When you use the exact words (direct quote) from a source, you must enclose these in double quotation marks ". . ." and follow immediately with an in-text citation, including page number or other section identifier. If the citation is at the end of the sentence, the punctuation goes after the parentheses, as the citation is part of the sentence. Quotations of 40 or more words are set as a block quotation, indented about 1 cm. Do not use quotation marks or italics. The citation is given after the full stop at the end of the quotation. APA has sample block quotes here. To cite multiple sources within parentheses, list citations in alphabetical order separated by a semi-colon e.g. (Cox et al., 2019; Jones, 2017). 	(APA, 2020, sections 8.25-8.28) Whether quoting an author directly, or paraphrasing, you must credit the source. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> For direct quotations, the author, year, and page number are given (APA, 2020, p. 270). Many electronic sources do not provide page numbers. When using direct quotations in such cases give a section identifier and/or paragraph number instead, like this: (Leech, 2006, para. 13) (Boland, 2001, Conclusion section, para. 2). Alternatively, for audio-visual material, provide a timestamp (e.g. 1:02) for the beginning of the quotation instead of a page number. For religious or classical work use the name of the book, chapter, verse, line, and/or canto. For plays, cite the act, scene, and line(s). Although section identifiers are not required for paraphrased material, getting into the habit of quoting page numbers will help readers locate material in lengthy texts, and will assist in your revision (APA, 2020, p. 269). For a single page, the number is given thus: p. 27. For multiple pages use pp. e.g. for page range use pp. 245–246 or a selection of pages pp. 7, 12, 15. Notice that there is always a space between p. or pp. and the page number.

Books and Reference Works

The books category includes authored books, edited books, anthologies, religious works, and classical works. The reference works category includes dictionaries, encyclopaedias (including Wikipedia), and diagnostic manuals.

This category includes both print and electronic versions. If a book has a digital object identifier (DOI, see p. 6) or is from most academic research databases, it is presented the same for print or electronic versions. The platform or device (e.g. Kindle) is not included in the reference. If an ebook does not come from a database (all ebooks from the Charles Sturt library are from academic databases), then include a URL. If you retrieved an ebook elsewhere (e.g. Kindle book) use model 22 in chapter 10 of the manual. Where an author wrote the whole book, reference the book in its entirety; there is no need to provide entries for individual chapters.

Book Type	Reference List	In-text Citation
One author (Basic form)	Apostolides, N. (2016). Management accounting for beginners. Routledge. The title is in italics, with sentence-style capitalisation. This means in book and article titles, capitalise only the first word, the first word after a colon (:.) or em dash (—), and proper nouns. If you are writing the source title within the body of your assignment, use italics and title case, e.g. The descriptions provided in Management Accounting for Beginners demonstrate that...(Apostolides, 2019, p. 45). In reference lists and in-text citations, a full stop is always followed by a space. If a book has a DOI, include it after the publisher. See page 6 for more information on how to present this. If you can find an electronic book in the library at Charles Sturt University, it comes from an academic research database and is presented in the same format as a printed book.	(Apostolides, 2016) 1) Parenthetical citation: both the author and date, separated by a comma, appear in parentheses. The appropriation account tracks ...(Apostolides, 2016, p. 25). 2) Narrative citation: the author's name is included in the sentence: Apostolides (2016, p. 25) suggests that... For either form, you can separate the page number, which follows the cited information: Apostolides (2016) argues that...(p. 25). Note When using short direct quotations (less than 40 words), the words are enclosed within double quotation marks: “. . .” and there must be a page number or section identifier in the citation (see p. 2).
Two authors	Nelson, D. L., & Cox, M. M. (2005). Principles of biochemistry (4th ed.). Freeman. Note the 1 cm hanging indent for each reference list entry. The publisher location is no longer a requirement in the seventh edition.	Buchner's work in biochemistry was a “pioneering discovery” (Nelson & Cox, 2005, p. 45). Cite both names every time the citation occurs in text. Use ‘and’ when author names are part of the sentence, or ‘&’ when inside parentheses.

Book Type	Reference List	In-text Citation
Three or more authors	Booth, W. C., Colomb, G. G., & Williams, J. M. (2008). The craft of research. University of Chicago Press. As noted on page 2, when there are 20 authors or fewer, include them all in the reference list entry. For 21 or more authors include the first 19 authors' names, then insert an ellipsis (three spaced periods / full stops), and add the last author's name. See the periodicals category for an example. Note the position of the authors' initials, the space before a second initial, and the punctuation.	(Booth et al., 2008) For three or more authors, cite only the first author, followed by 'et al.' for all citations.
Three or more authors (with subtitle)	Malcolm, L. R., Barlow, S., Leury, B., & Sale, P. (2009). Agriculture in Australia: An introduction (2nd ed.). Oxford University Press. Capitalise the start of a subtitle as though it were a new sentence.	(Malcolm et al., 2009)
Entire edited book (with DOI assigned)	Sleezer, C. M., Russ-Eft, D. F., & Gupta, K. (Eds.). (2014). A practical guide to needs assessment. John Wiley & Sons. https://doi.org/10.1002/9781118826164 Use '(Ed.)' if there is just one editor. If a print book has a DOI, include it at the end of your reference list entry. As shown in the above example, this should be in the hyperlink format https://doi.org/xxxxx Read more about this on page 6.	(Sleezer et al., 2014)
Article or chapter in an edited book (without a DOI, from most academic research databases or print version)	Goeser, A. L. (2009). Skin, hair, and nails. In R. M. Jones & R. M. Rospond (Eds.), Patient assessment in pharmacy practice (2nd ed., pp. 118–140). Lippincott Williams & Wilkins. Please note: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> the edition number and page numbers are in the same parentheses; the position of the editors' initials. 	(Goeser, 2009, p. 119) Goeser (2009) writes that “hair follicles do not continuously produce hair” (p. 120). The full stop follows the closing parenthesis, because the citation is a part of the sentence.
Multi-volume work	Lynch, D. S., & Stillinger, J. (Eds.). (2012). The Norton anthology of English literature: The Romantic period (9th ed., Vol. D). Norton.	(Lynch & Stillinger, 2012, p. 4) Lynch and Stillinger (2012, p. 4) maintain . . . Lynch and Stillinger (2012) suggest “. . .” (p. 4).

Periodicals

Periodicals are generally published on a continuous basis and include journals, magazines, newspapers, newsletters and even blogs, and other online platforms that publish articles (see APA, 2020, section 10.1).

Journal Articles

Most journal articles (sometimes called periodicals) are available on the web. Some have previously been published in print; others are only available electronically. Peer-reviewed journals provide reliable information. In contrast, general websites are often unreliable, and can be difficult to cite.

For these reasons, the following approach is highly recommended:

1. use the university library's databases to find reliable, peer-reviewed (academic-quality) articles;
2. select the pdf versions of articles whenever possible;
3. cite the articles using the models given below.

Digital Object Identifier (DOI):

- Many scholarly publishers assign a Digital Object Identifier (DOI) to journal articles and other documents. Include a DOI for all works (see APA, 2020, 9.34) that have a DOI, regardless of whether you used the online version or the print version.
- The DOI is a unique string of numbers that identifies content and provides a lasting link to its location on the Internet.
- The DOI is usually located on the first page of an article. It may also be listed on the full record display of the database you used to find the article.
- Present a DOI in the standardised format: <https://doi.org/xxxxx>. For example, use <https://doi.org/10.1037/a0040251> in your reference even though an article may have presented the number in an older format.
- When a DOI or URL is long or complex, you can use the shortDOI service if desired (<http://shortdoi.org/>).

Retrieval dates: The retrieval date is NOT included when electronic content is in its final form, and is not likely to be changed.

Database name: In general, it is NOT necessary to include a database name in a reference list entry.

Audio-visual Media

Square brackets [] are used to describe the type of resource being cited, e.g. [Film], [TV series], [Audio podcast episode], or [painting].

The author may include the director for a film, producer for a television series, writer and director for a television episode, host or composer, artist, or uploader for other medium types. Include the role in brackets for the director, writer, producer, and host.

If you want to include an audio-visual work in your assignment rather than cite it (e.g. a photograph from a website), you may need to seek permission from the copyright owner and/or provide copyright attribution according to the terms of the image licence.

Audio-visual Medium Type	Reference List	In-text Citation
Film or video	Loneragan, K. (Director). (2000). You can count on me [Film]. Paramount Pictures. Use “Director” in the author position if known. If this role is unknown, include someone in a similar role to assist readers to retrieve the work. You need not distinguish between how you watched the film (e.g. DVD, theatre, streaming online). If you wish to include additional information, you can follow the word “film” with a semi-colon (;) when it includes a special feature that you used such as a commentary e.g. [Film; four-disc special extended ed. on DVD].	(Loneragan, 2000)

Charles Sturt Curriculum and Course Materials

This includes subject outlines and the content of Interact sites. If a source is accessible to the readers, such as class materials or material on a company's intranet, then a URL reference to the login page is acceptable. An article or chapter in a collection of readings is presented as if you read it in its original journal or book.

Technical and Research Reports

Technical and research reports “usually cover original research, but may or may not be peer reviewed” (APA, 2020, p. 329, 10.4). Such reports are produced by a range of organisations including government departments, advocacy groups, trade groups, and corporations, and are sometimes known as grey literature. It is optional, but often helpful, to describe what type of literature it is in square brackets.

The seventh edition no longer requires the use of the statement ‘Retrieved from . . .’ for the URL or the DOI. In the following examples a retrieval date is NOT necessary because the documents are dated and are not likely to be changed.

General Websites

University teachers advise against using websites that are not associated with identifiable and reliable journals, scholars, universities, research organisations (such as the CSIRO), or government bodies (including the ABS). All websites should be carefully evaluated. If you cannot find out who is responsible for a site, then you should avoid it. The library have resources to help you evaluate information.

If page numbers are not given on a website, then include a section identifier and/or paragraph number: (Wilson, 2005, Introduction section, para. 3).

Note on assignment layout:

The APA Publication Manual (7th ed.), which offers guidance on many aspects of formatting and presentation, was written to provide guidance for authors preparing manuscripts to be submitted for publication in journals. While student work may not be formally published, it still warrants the same care and attention to writing and referencing (APA, 2020, p. 3). However, student assignments are not usually intended for publication: they are a 'final' product. Consequently, the requirements for the presentation of university essays, theses, and reports—particularly in relation to questions of layout and structure—may differ from APA style. In all cases, the rules should be balanced with good judgement. If in doubt, check your subject outline or ask your lecturer.
